Har is elusive and very difficult to find. Many collectors have waited years to collect the entire parure. Featured here is the necklace, large bangle bracelet and the matching earrings. The 16 inch necklace is composed of a sleeping dragon center piece in gold tone plating and green enameling. The necklace chain is made of individual links simulating his (or her) tail. Surrounding the dragon body are 2 large lava stones and orange and peridot ab rhinestones. The earrings are each 1.5

inches long and again a small green enameled dragon surrounded by the same rhinestone motif as the necklace. The condition of the necklace is very good, with no missing stones. The inside dragon tail links need to be cleaned. The condition of the earrings is very good. The bangle bracelet is a clamper style with the dragon body resting upon the top of your wrist and the tail circling around the wrist. The design is composed of a sleeping dragon center piece in gold tone plating and green enameling. Surrounding the dragon body are 2 large lava stones and orange and peridot ab rhinestones. It is signed Har. All stones are present and there is no damage to the stone foiling. It does appear to have been repaired at one time at the inside hinge. I am not sure if it is due to the repair or the age of this piece but on the underside of the outside of the bangle a very small piece of the casting has worn away. It is almost indistinguishable and does not in anyway detract from the beauty of this bracelet. The hinge is strong and the clamper is held firm around the wrist.
